* Public Service Scholarship ****

The Long Island Business Institute has launched our "General Richard S. Colt Public Service Scholarship," which is named after the Director and designer of our Homeland Security program. General Colt is a retired two star Army General with a substantial background in public service. The purpose of this scholarship is to offer a 10% tuition reduction to public servants as well as individuals who volunteer for their communities. In some cases, family members of these individuals can qualify for this tuition reduction. For additional information about this scholarship opportunity, please contact an admissions representative at the number listed below. Life experience credits may be applied toward the degree.

Our faculty possess backgrounds in a wide array of professions including military, F.B.I., fire and police, amongst others. This scholarship was established because of LIBI's commitment to public service.

The Long Island Business Institute recognizes the importance of public servants and volunteers in today's society. The hard work they perform to serve their communities is praiseworthy, and deserving of recognition. Working together, we hope we can assist in their efforts to move forward in their careers.
